FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK
Mr. Liam O'Reilly

Dear Class of 2010:

It's important for you to know that I am writing this during the first week of December 2009, anticipating the first snowfall of the year, and looking back at our last three months together. If you are nervous about what the future holds for you, I understand. I was a little nervous this past summer about coming to a new school and assuming a new role. The anxiety quickly became excitement for me, and I sincerely hope you experience the same change as you consider graduation.

As you may or may not know, my start date at East Windsor High School was delayed as my wife and I were preparing for the passing of my father-in-law. Stan Maslona had been hospitalized for most of the spring but even though his mind was very sharp, his 80 year old body was wearing out. Stan died on June 30th of this past year, surrounded by those who cared a great deal about him, including me.

Losing a father-in-law is not like losing a parent. Our relationship was more like two friends rather than family members. One of the nicest parts of this experience was that Stan lived long enough to hear about my new job. He was able to share his heartfelt congratulations with me, and his best wishes for my future at East Windsor High School.

Not long after Stan's funeral, I reflected with my mother-in-law on the lessons I learned from Stan that have made me a better teacher. I'd like to share the lessons I learned from Stan as my graduation gift to the class of 2010.

- 1) If someone asks for your help, give it. If you need help, ask for it and accept it graciously. We're all in this together, so it's best to work together and know that while you may be good at some things, it's best to accept support from those who may know more about something than you do.
- 2) Enjoy life's simple pleasures. Sometimes that means eating a ham sandwich on white bread, or watching a little league baseball game. Not everything has to happen on a grand scale.
- 3) Whatever you do for a living remember that it is just that, what you do, not who you are. Work hard at what you do, but work harder at what you are.
- 4) Read, read, read. It makes you more interesting.
- 5) If you overhear something upsetting, for example harsh words between family members, pretend you don't hear it. Not everything is your business.
- 6) If someone tells you a secret, keep it. If you have a secret, tell it to someone you trust.
- 7) Don't complain about your aches and pains. The people that matter most know when you are making an effort to do something for them.
- 8) Tidy up after yourself. It makes life pleasant for everyone.
- 9) Use the right tool for the job. You make a mess of things if you don't.
- 10) Let your wife, or husband, order for you in a restaurant. Don't be helpless but don't deny anyone the pleasure of taking care of another human being.

Best wishes to all of you. I hope you are all able to share the lessons you've learned at East Windsor High School with others as you begin your journey beyond our four walls.

Sincerely,
Liam O'Reilly
Principal

Dedication

The Class of 2010 would like to dedicate their yearbook to Mrs. LeMay, an outstanding English teacher and truly inspirational woman. Mrs. LeMay's outgoing personality and her "ready to take on the world" attitude has gotten the Class of 2010 through the triumphs and tribulations of high school. It is because of her that we are experts at sorting through boxes of sweatshirts, knowing what boots to wear in the fall, and understanding how to have our husband's pack our lunches and start our cars in the winter time.

Mrs. LeMay has always pushed us to be all of who we can be, whether in our writing, in meetings, or in our other social interactions. She constantly stressed the importance of reaching our full potential in life. Her caring nature and warm hearted qualities have comforted many of us when we have needed it the most. Thanks for standing by our side over the years, always smiling and caring. We love you!

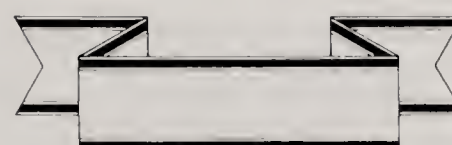

Class Motto

Class History

By

D'Vonya Ramsey, Class Historian

There aren't many words in the English language that could explain the feelings we felt the fall of 2006. Nothing could prepare us for what we were to endure over the next four years. Angie Rocca, Sarah Camp, Eric Fernandez, Magda Ceballos & Shanel Kendrick stepped up and filled the roles of our class executive board, along with Mrs. LeMay & Mrs. Percival, our advisors. With their help, the adjustment to high school seemed so much easier. Weeks into the school year, it was time for us to nominate our class court for Homecoming. Alyssa Bromley & Stephen Quesnel were elected. The night brought many smiles and aching bodies the morning after. Unbeknownst to us, Spirit Week wouldn't bring as many smiles. The theme was decades and we had chosen the 1980's. We decorated our hallway as everyone's favorite 80's videogame - Pac-Man. As cool and original as we thought we were being, we lost horribly. All in all, we still had fun and were determined to win the following year.

Summer came and went, and before we knew it, we were sophomores. Our class was led by Stephen Quesnel, Safwan Shaikh, Chris Hoang, Sean Harrington & D'Vonya Ramsey, once again with the help of Mrs. LeMay, joined by Mrs. Kennedy. Between discovering who we were, and trying to balance school with friends, Homecoming snuck up on us. We nominated Alyssa Bromley & Stephen Quesnel to represent us as we danced the night away. It was Spirit Week finally, and a year wiser and stronger than the year before, we were for sure going to beat the seniors. The theme that year was board games, and we chose Candy Land. After hours of cutting out gingerbread men, coloring Mr. Mint, and matching our costumes just right, one can only imagine the frustration, confusion, and devastation we felt when we lost.

Time was flying by. In the blink of an eye, we were juniors - next in line to be in charge. On top of our annual Spirit Week and Homecoming Dance, we had prom to look forward to. Our class executive board consisted of Elizabeth Lachat, Jacob Pelletier, Angie Rocca, Stephen Quesnel, Safwan Shaikh & D'Vonya Ramsey. Mr. Gelbar joined Mrs. LeMay in advising the class. That year, the junior class elected Stephen Quesnel & Jenn Buden to the homecoming court. The year flew by, and with May came prom! After months of stressing to find the perfect date and the perfect outfit, it all was worth it in the end. We celebrated on May 15, 2009 at The Adams Mill in Manchester. Our theme was Hollywood and the stars were definitely out that night. Jracarr Johnson entertained us with an energetic hip-hop performance, and midway through our night, the music was dimmed and Mr. Gelbar took the floor to announce prom court. The lucky winners were Stephen Quesnel, Alyssa Bromley, Elizabeth Lachat, Gregory Hilson, Angie Rocca & Jon Marino. Jacob Pelletier & D'Vonya Ramsey were nominated Prom King and Queen.

Senior year was here, and life as we knew it was shortly coming to an end. We were led that year by Elizabeth Lachat, Cody Milardo, Shantel Fernandez, Ashley Murray, Angie Rocca & D'Vonya Ramsey. Our final Homecoming took place in the fall and Elizabeth Lachat & Stephen Quesnel were elected to the homecoming court. Jacob Pelletier & Jenn Buden were our Homecoming King & Queen. The months passed, and finally, senior year came to an end. We spent Class Day together at High Meadows on May 26, and May 28 was our last night together at the Springfield Marriott, where Senior Banquet was held. The most anticipated day of the year had finally arrived ~ graduation! It was a bittersweet day that we'll remember forever!

The Backstage Crew supports the Drama Club in their productions each year. The crew builds the set, finds and maintains the props and outfits the cast with costumes. They also provide technical support with lighting and sound. Without their hard work and amazing dedication, the show could not go on!! They are the unseen heroes of the stage.
